Reading Teacher of the Year Award and Celebrate Literacy Award

MARC is calling for nominations for our annual literacy awards. Please take time to help recognize a deserving individual, group or organization and send us a nomination for the Reading Teacher of the Year Award or the Celebrate Literacy Award.

Do you know an elementary, middle, or secondary school teacher or professor who has done outstanding work in the field of reading?

Reading Teacher of the Year:

- Evidence of:
 - Participation in professional activities which enhance the literacy effort
 - Leadership roles in these efforts
 - Strong advocacy for reading
 - Impact on students' attitudes and achievement
 - Knowledge about the field of reading research and practice
 - Demonstrated knowledge of reading research and practice
 - Role model for others in the field of reading

Do you know a local organization, group, or individual who has made significant contributions to the promotion of literacy in a school, library or the community?

Celebrate Literacy Award:

- Evidence of:
 - The nominee's contribution to literacy
 - Beneficial results of contributions to the community/city/state
 - Role model for literacy advancement
 - Knowledge of research and practice

If you are aware of a deserving candidate or candidates for either of these awards, please don't miss this chance to give them the recognition they deserve. Submit a letter of recommendation that addresses the criteria listed above. Include the name of the nominee(s), their school or workplace, position, and contact information. Please include your contact information as well.

Nominations are due by Friday, March 9, 2012. They should be mailed to:
